A WHITE man walked along the sand dunes of Brunei, sniffed the air and declared: "There's oil here. I can smell it." He was a senior official of the oilfields at Miri, in northwestern Sarawak, and had a nose for the stuff. This was the beginning in the late nineteenth century of one of the most ironical chapters in modern history. Brunei is part of Borneo, and Borneo is another name for the island of the Malay archipelago, the third largest in the world and nearly three times the size of the United Kingdom.

THE Modern Sultans of the present State of Brunei once wielded power over the whole of the territory, and much more besides. But times changed. The Dutch acquired the central part and the south of the island, so that most of it today is part of the Indonesian Republic. Of the Brunei crown that remained to the Sultans, western Sarawak was ceded in 1841 to Sir James Brooke for his services in crushing the revolts. The hereditary ruler was pushed farther east thereafter, engulfing a mere land, more of Brunei, as the reputation for inviolable rule of the "white rajah" spread. Meanwhile the Sultans sold North Borneo, to the east of Brunei, to a British commercial syndicate in 1877.

BUT Brunei's fabulous oil riches threaten to be very temporary. Of 36 new wells drilled in the land, only two have yielded small quantities of oil. Of four drilled at sea, none has given a drop. According to estimates, the oil will run dry in 15 years if no successful new wells are found. This, however, is of relatively little importance to the Brunei Sultan. Thirty years ago State revenue amounted to less than $40,000 a year. Today income from oil taxes alone averages $11 million annually for a population of fewer than 80,000. Brunei has 470 millions invested abroad and it is reckoned that within a few years she will not only be able to maintain her economy but also finance her ambitious development programme solely from oil taxes, accruing from this source of income. But a sanctimonious destiny is not allowing riches to bring contentment to the day of State.

THESE influences drive the rich State into a heavy pattern of public expenditure reminiscent of a football pool winner raised on theological prejudice and an empty bank account. The golden dome of Brunei's new mosque, completed last year at the cost of about $10 million, is already cracked. The plates and glasses flown in for the banquet which celebrated its opening cost $20 per cover, but the glasses could hardly be used thereafter, for Brunei's Islamic rules have it that it is a crime to serve alcoholic drink to a Moslem. All bars are being gradually closed. According to one report, suitcases of Brunei's new money are being sent to the Duke of Edinburgh by commercial aircraft and their freight paid for at the normal rate for cargo. The report is significant that, whether this is true or not, no one who knows his modern Brunei doubts the veracity of the story.

AN admirable development programme has been initiated, but its execution depends on the vagaries of the Sultan's religious advisers. The State Council, which appears to believe that dollars cause ignorance, has refused the offer of a free library from the British Council. At the same time it is hard to find students prepared to accept tempting scholarships offered abroad, for there is a tendency to think that money will buy position, and knowledge is therefore redundant.

EUROPEANS, Borneans and Chinese agree that they would rather live in relatively poor Borneo and Sarawak than in this bloated Moslem State, and even the Malays of the other territories dislike their Brunei co-religionists. Brunei is on the road to becoming an Islamic State and its sympathies lie with the Federation of Malaya, rather than with its neighbours. It begins to look uncommonly like a reactionary sheikhdom, by Texas out of Hollywood.

Fighting in Tibet 'Serious'—Nehru

NEW DELHI (Reuters).—Premier Nehru on Monday expressed concern at the outbreak of fighting between Tibetans and Chinese in Tibet and said he hoped the trouble would be resolved peacefully.

Speaking in Parliament, he expressed hope for the safety of the Dalai Lama following Tibetan resistance to an apparent Chinese Communist attempt to arrest him.

The newspaper "Statesman" reported from Darjeeling, northern India, that two monasteries in Lhasa were on fire and speculated that this had been caused by Chinese aerial bombardment. Reports from the Indian border town of Kalimpong said that Gyantse, a town on the trade route between India and Lhasa, was in a state of panic. The Indian Foreign Secretary confirmed on Monday evening that telegraphic communication with Mr. Nehru said his Government had declined a Chinese suggestion that the Indian staff move from their offices into the Chinese Foreign Bureau in Lhasa. He stated that under international law the staff is entitled to the fullest protection and "I have no doubt the Chinese Government will see the rightness of our request."

Indian Consulate Hit
Mr. Nehru said fighting broke out on March 20 between Chinese troops and Tibetan elements. Some heavy bullets hit the Indian consulate building and for some time the Consul-General could not go out. The situation appeared to have quieted down.

The outbreak of violence in Lhasa was a new development, Mr. Nehru said, although there had previously been conflicts in southern Tibet. "The House will appreciate that this is a delicate and serious situation and we should avoid doing anything which will worsen it. We have no intention of interfering in the internal affairs of China with whom we have friendly relations," he added.

In London, reports of clashes in Tibet were splashed on front-page under huge banner headlines in several newspapers, while editorials suggested India could use its influence with China to alleviate the situation.

Open Revolt, Says State Department

WASHINGTON (Reuters).—The State Department said on Monday it had evidence that Tibetan resistance to Chinese repression had erupted into open revolt. "The extent of this revolt and its chances against the armed and ruthless power of the Chinese Communists are as yet unclear," the Department spokesman said in prepared statement.

Iraq Expels 150 Egyptian Schoolteachers

The Baghdad authorities have expelled 150 Egyptian schoolteachers for making "widespread propaganda" on behalf of the U.A.R. The Jordan press reported on Monday.

It is expected that more Egyptian and Syrian teachers will soon be ordered to leave Iraq on similar charges. The Arab News Agency reported that Premier Kassem of Iraq is to visit Mosul at the beginning of next week accompanied by a number of his Ministers and senior Army officers.

Three Murder Bids

Dr. Hashem Jawad, the Iraqi Foreign Minister, said in Baghdad that the Cairo authorities had made three attempts to assassinate him. According to the Old City daily, "Al-Jihad," Jawad was quoted as adding that arms seized in Sharaf's headquarters had been sent from Port Said to Syria, whence they were smuggled into Mosul. He stated that a Bedouin truck driver was found in Iraqi territory three days after Sharaf's death, asking for the location of Sharaf's headquarters. Asked where he came from, the driver said he truckload of arms was brought from Syria and that he had lost his way in the desert.

Meanwhile, it was announced in Baghdad that the trial of Sharaf's accomplices is to start on Tuesday (today) at the Special Military Court in Baghdad on charges of treason. Recent reports from Baghdad stated that 300 armed men were captured during anti-revolution operations in Mosul following the abortive revolt a fortnight ago.

The White Paper, based entirely on a report from the Governor, Sir Robert Armitage, states that the leaders of the Congress had intended to murder Sir Robert, other officials, policemen and other Whites and several African "quislings."

The plotters are also said to have planned to sabotage telephone lines, bridges, airfields and petrol dumps throughout Nyasaland and the power plants in the capital, Blantyre.

According to the White Paper, 140 delegates of the Congress met on January 25 to consider the plan. The leader of the Congress, Dr. Banda, did not participate at that meeting, but there is evidence that he met at his instigation, the Governor wrote.

The meeting will: Prepare drafts of the detailed terms under which Britain will retain military bases in an independent Cyprus. Explore nationality problems such as the future status of Cypriots living in Britain. Ascertain financial and other liabilities of the present Cyprus Government.

U.A.R. Stays Silent On Suez Cargoes

WASHINGTON. — There has still been no news on the cargoes from Israel detained by Egypt in the Suez Canal and this is not one of the occasions when no news is good news.

The unofficial reply of the U.A.R. is that both ships were chartered by Israel companies and it was therefore Israel and not Egypt which broke the status quo. This was published in the Cairo daily "Al-Ahram," but so far as can be ascertained here U.A.R. has not bothered to communicate it to the State Department.

Meanwhile, Nasser has once again announced his belittled intentions by telling the world that he was ready to take the first step toward independence on the Malay Peninsula.

West Foreign Ministers To Meet at Month's End

Will Discuss Parley with Russia

The Big Three Western Foreign Ministers and their West German counterparts are to meet in Washington on March 31 and April 1 to exchange views before a possible conference with the Soviet Union, the Foreign Office announced in London on Monday.

The announcement said the Foreign Ministers of Britain, France and the United States representatives of the Western powers having the primary responsibility for Germany, will meet in Washington. Prime Minister Macmillan said after a final meeting with President Eisenhower at the White House on Monday afternoon that their weekend talks at Camp David, Maryland, were "the best conference we have ever had."

In the morning, the British Prime Minister and his Foreign Secretary, Mr. Selwyn Lloyd, discussed with top U.S. officials Anglo-American trade and the economic situation of the free world in the face of the economic drive by the Communist powers.

On Sunday, the President and Mr. Macmillan had a quiet talk on trade matters before driving back to Washington from Camp David. On the way, they called on Secretary of State Dulles at his home to inform him of their talks. Mr. Macmillan flew home on Tuesday morning (today), having accomplished the main object of his American mission—to persuade the President of the inevitability of a summit meeting with the Soviet Union this summer.

They have also agreed on the general reply to Russia on the question of a summit meeting and their note—expected to propose a meeting of Foreign Ministers in Geneva on May 1—will probably be sent to the Soviet Premier later this week.

'Pravda' Says Bonn Acting Like Prussia
MOSCOW (Reuters). — The Soviet Communist Party newspaper "Pravda" said on Monday that some of the elements of Prussian great-power politics could be found in current West German foreign policy.

The article, quoted by Tass, listed these as "the striving for absolute dominance in Europe, trusting in the fist and blood and iron, disregard of the elementary requirements of sober political calculation, and extreme adventurism."

The newspaper accused West Germany of being both the only country openly voicing territorial claims in Europe and one of the main opponents of any agreement aimed at relaxing tension and ending the cold war.

Soviet Trade Union Congress Opens
MOSCOW (Reuters). — Premier Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders were present on Monday at the opening of the 12th congress of Soviet trade unions in the Kremlin, attended by 1,275 trade union delegates and visitors from Communist and Western countries.

Mr. Victor Tvorichin, Chairman of the All-Union Central Trades Union Council, said that Soviet trade unions were in favour of restoring good and favourable relations with all trade unions irrespective of differences in social and economic systems.

Prof. Berenblum At WHO Parley

A scientist from Israel was among a top-level world group of eight experts who started meeting in Geneva on Monday to consider plans for expanding cancer research programs under World Health Organization auspices.

The scientist is Professor Isaac Berenblum, Head of the Experimental Biology Department at the Weizmann Institute. He took part in the earlier deliberations on WHO planning for medical research, which were held last year.

The other experts come from the U.S.A., United Kingdom, the U.S.S.R., France, Germany, India and Norway.

The meeting, to continue until March 26, will discuss implementation of the recommendations on cancer research contained in the comprehensive report on medical research which was submitted to the WHO Council by the Director-General.

Dr. Berenblum has been entrusted with organizing an international symposium on "The Functional Components of Carcinogenesis" to be held at the Weizmann Institute in Rehovot this September.

This symposium will be restricted to some 30 invited experts and will not be open to the public, though a limited number of scientists from this country will be allowed, by invitation, to attend as observers. It will be under the auspices of the International Union Against Cancer.

Favorable replies to invitations to deliver papers at the symposium have been received from 21 scientists in various countries.

More Civilians To Join in March

HAIFA. — About 12,000 pairs of legs will be on the march during the national trek from Haifa to Jerusalem between April 15 and 16.

As in the past, most of the marchers will be the country's uniformed youth, male and female. But this year no fewer than 1,800 civilians have enrolled for this tough endurance test, among them 800 men (last year, 700) and 200 women (180). Another 100 men and 34 women are of an age group to which the Army Statistics Bureau generally refers collectively as "elderly," without giving details.

Among the organized groups to take part in the massive warlike march, the newly formed Knesset Guard unit.

Persons who have registered to take part in the march have been asked to buy food tickets for the march not later than April 4. The tickets are sold in various colors, according to the age group in which the marchers belong. The hungry marchers will also be allowed to buy from Southern Army canteens to be set up along the route.

Village MD Practice Rule Suspended

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Regulations requiring medical school graduates to practice in a village for one year have been suspended until further notice by a joint committee comprising the Ministries of Health and Education, the Medical School, Kupat Holim and other institutions.

The committee said it was longer necessary to require young doctors to serve in villages as many are doing this voluntarily, and because there are sufficient physicians, particularly in the field of internal medicine, to meet rural needs.

Graduates of the Medical School have been encouraged to become village doctors for the year because of the valuable medical experience involved.

The regulations, which were suspended by the Ministry of Health, were not suspended, but a change in the situation could result in re-application.

Since the regulations were introduced nearly five years ago, 136 graduates of the Medical School were directed to villages, and 51 went to hospitals, in rural and development areas.

Tel Aviv Enlarges Four More Councils

Jerusalem Post Reporter

The Minister of Religious Affairs, Rabbi Y.M. Tolson, on Monday approved the widening of four local religious councils. The enlargement was in line with the Minister's policy of making them representative of all segments of the religious community.

The Council of Geulim, in the Negev, was increased from one member to nine; Ramat Hasharon Council, from six to nine; Sda Yachov, near Tel Aviv, from five to nine; and the Council of Sda Yachov, from one to three. Five other councils have already been enlarged.

U.S. Rabbi Asks Pope For All-Faith Parley

NEW YORK (U.N.A.) — Rabbi Maurice N. Eisenstadt, President of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and rabbi of the New York Temple, has asked Pope John XXIII to alter the proposed Ecumenical Council on unity of all Christians to include leaders of other faiths in an inclusive council for world peace.

In a second letter on Monday, which accompanied the return of the tickets, Judge Tolson emphasized that although he received the invitations as a member of the League for World Peace, he was acting in accordance with the Jewish decision.

Mayor Levanon declared on Monday that he intended replying to Dr. Levanon, the earliest opportunity. The judges, he said, must understand that there was not economic chaos in the Municipality had invited the members of the Supreme Court, so that the judiciary was sufficiently represented, Mr. Levanon said.

Rough Schedule At Rehovot Farm Seminar

REHOVOT. — "We have seen, heard and absorbed. Now, after our first tour of Israel, we can feel and understand as a result of Mr. Martin Appiah Djanqah, representative of Ghanaian landowners and one of the 22 participants in the Rehovot Farm Seminar in Israel.

The daily schedule consists of an intensive 10 hours, including an average of four lectures, delivered in one of the auditoriums of the Hebrew University's Agricultural Faculty here, which have been taken over for the duration of the convention.

All of the Afro-Asian participants are key men in development projects, settlement or agrarian reform in their own countries. One of the seminar's goals is to help the participants to get to know the Jewish people and the Jewish land.

The 12-day seminar is intended to afford an insight into the settlement planning in Israel.

Summarizing some of his impressions, the Parliamentary Secretary to the Ghanaian Ministry of Agriculture, Mr. E. A. Mahama, declared that part of Israel's success lay in "the dignity of Israel labour" and "the educational achievement which underdeveloped countries would do well to copy."

The convention will be officially concluded with a farewell banquet to be given by the Rehovot Municipality and Rotary Club on Friday.

No Legal Basis For Radio Fee Cases

TEL AVIV. — The Tel Aviv Magistrate's Court has stopped accepting cases involving charges against persons who have failed to renew their radio licenses.

It took this step after Magistrate R. Rosenfeld declared that there was no legal basis for such cases.

Over 50,000 such cases have been filed against persons in the Tel Aviv area alone.

Magistrate Rosenfeld pointed out that the charges were based on a clause in the Radio and Telegraph Regulations of 1943 which was repealed in 1957.

In a letter to the Minister of Justice he also stated that the intention of the regulations was that administrative action be taken against persons who did not renew their licenses, and not to bring them before the courts.

He added that during the Mandate the Government sent inspectors to homes to check on radio ownership. This was discontinued under the State, and the prosecution now had no evidence to show that the person who had not renewed his license was still in possession of his radio.

As a result, persons who pleaded guilty were automatically acquitted, as the prosecution could not back up its charges with evidence. The burden of proof is on the prosecution, Magistrate Rosenfeld wrote.

One case which came up involved a woman who was charged with failing to renew her license for three years. She pleaded not guilty, claiming that her radio had been stolen by the Income Tax authorities three years ago.

Tel Avivians Hope For Good Adloyada Weather

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Tel Avivians anxiously scanned the skies on Monday night, hoping that the elaborate Adloyada parade would not have to be postponed for 24 hours because of bad weather.

Scores of municipal workers began at dawn trundling silver-painted tar barrels to place along the Adloyada parade route.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt will be on the decorated band (across from the Levisky Seminary) as the city's guest of honor.

The railways have scheduled a special train from Rehovot to Haifa to enable out-of-towners to enjoy the Adloyada. The train will leave Tel Aviv at 9 p.m. and stop at all stations, arriving in Haifa at 10.30.

In Haifa on Monday a clear weather brought thick crowds out to Rehovot. The parade of children in their fancy costumes, and the groups who came to enjoy the sight. A large sprinkling of warriors of all nations equipped with weapons ranging from spears to a curly-headed space rocket and cooks, sailors and policemen.

Cold weather barred the appearance of scantily dressed "jungle warriors" — a favourite theme among children last year, and mothers were sure that warm winter underwear provided the basis for costumes.

The Purim spirit did well at private parties in the evening. Parties were keeping the celestials warm.

10,000 Frolic At Beersheba Fete

BEERSHEBA. — An estimated 10,000 persons converged on this town on Monday night for the opening of the Purim festival.

The festival was organized by the Municipality and the Tenth Anniversary Committee, on the occasion of the town's liberation.

Coloured lights and Chinese lanterns illuminated the Beit Ha'am square, where Mayor Dr. Toussaint made a short address of welcome. Immediately afterwards, fireworks were set off.

Entertainment troupes provided music, skits and dances for the celebrants. A giant "beduin encampment" was set up as the site of a Purim fair.

Negotiations to maintain order at the celebrations, which continued till the early hours of the morning, Special Police were placed on duty.

The programme also included a first performance by Ernest Chausson, which brought a prolonged applause for the conductor and the orchestra.

Loewenthal Makes Debut With I.P.O.

TEL AVIV. — Jerome Loewenthal, the young American pianist, made his debut Monday night with the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by M. Jean Fournet.

His performance of Beethoven's Fourth Piano Concerto was well received by the audience.

The programme also included a first performance by Ernest Chausson, which brought a prolonged applause for the conductor and the orchestra.

Mrs. Roosevelt Visits Baka el Gharbiya

HADERA. — Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, accompanied by her 16-year-old granddaughter, Nina, on Monday visited the Arab village of Baka el Gharbiya.

The guests were received by the head of the village, Mr. Zaki Abdullah Uwial, who presented Mrs. Roosevelt with a Turkish coffee set.

Mrs. Roosevelt also visited the local tinny food factory, where she chatted with a worker who is a resident of the village.

Mrs. Roosevelt later visited the village of Yitzhak, where she was later lunching with the President of the Board of Directors, Mr. Zaki Abdullah Uwial.

Mrs. Roosevelt will be the guest of honour of the I.P.O. this evening (Tuesday) at the Mann Auditorium. The concert will be Miss Hephzibah Meshulam, who will play under the baton of M. Fournet.

Delay in Publishing Scroll Texts Caused Scholars' Differences

Jerusalem Post Reporter

"The delay in publishing the texts of the Dead Sea Scrolls abroad was one of the reasons for the differences of opinion among scholars, and Israeli scholars have been reduced to feeding on the crumbs of others' work,"

Dr. Yigael Yadin declared yesterday at the Fifth Annual Conference on the Scrolls, held in the Rehavia Secondary School Auditorium. As a result most of the papers delivered at the conference were confined to fragments of a Dead Sea Scroll of Eschatological Midrashim, published by John Allegro of the University of Manchester.

The conference was opened by the Prime Minister, Mr. David Ben-Gurion, who participated in the whole of the session. In his opening remarks, he paid tribute to the late Prof. E.L. Lohman, to whose memory the conference was dedicated.

Dr. Yadin, who was instrumental in acquiring additional ones for Israel. He also recalled with amusement a discussion he had at the time as to whether the discovery of the scrolls or the establishment of the State of Israel was more important.

Disputes Allegro

Dr. Yadin devoted his talk to textual analysis and a reconstruction of missing parts of the Eschatological Midrashim. He disagreed on many points with the views of Allegro. Dr. David Flusser, in his 15-minute talk, expressed the belief that the scrolls would appear in the Last Days (Ahavat Hayamim).

Dr. Flusser also thought, in reference to the building of the Temple of the Last Days, that there was the faintest possibility of some connection with the reported saying of Jesus that he would "destroy this temple that is made with hands, and within three days I will build another, made without hands," which was one of the charges against him (Mark 14:58 and John 2:19).

Dr. Yadin had felt that the writer of the text may have taken the saying of Jesus to refer to the Temple of Solomon.

Dr. Jacob Licht dealt with the "Scroll of the Community for the Last Day," finding that this text does not necessarily show that the Dead Sea sect believed in the coming of two Messiahs, though this belief is proved to be held by the sect in other scrolls.

Prof. Chaim Rabin explained in his talk that the text of the "Scroll of the Community for the Last Day" was a kind of bridge to the traditional midrashim.

Teachers to Receive Literature Allowance

Schoolteachers are to be paid an allowance for professional literature, retroactive to last September.

The allowance ranges from $140 for beginning kindergarten teachers to $180 a year for secondary school teachers with a bachelor's degree and 16 years of service.

Receipts will be required up to the value of half of the allowance.

The retroactive part of the allowance, to be paid this month, will be in progress between the education authorities and the Treasury on whether the allowances in general will be exempt from income tax, the Ministry states in a circular to schools.

Agriculture Students Protest New Rule

REHOVOT. — Students of the Faculty of Agriculture of the Hebrew University staged a demonstration here on Monday to protest against new examination regulations.

They claimed that students, after taking the degree, would be obliged to pass an entrance examination before being allowed to continue for their M.Sc. This, they asserted, should not apply to present third-year students, as they had not had advance information of the change.

About 20 of the lower grade students joined third-year students in a one-hour solidarity strike.

A students' meeting decided that the strike would be renewed unless the Faculty reconsidered the new regulations.
